

EVALUATION AND SUSTAINABILITY (AFTER SERVICE)

As a community partner in the e-SL project, you can be involved in different types of evaluation. It would help if you discussed this with the university teacher during initial conversations about your participation in e-SL. Your participation and feedback in evaluation processes are vitally important. They are greatly appreciated as the university in e-SL strives to meet the needs of its community or contribute to the solving of different challenges. Gathering feedback from you is essential for the future improvement of service-learning partnerships and ensuring expectations from the partnership are met. The evaluation also serves as a ground for building a long-term and sustainable relationship between you and the university.

You can be part of this evaluation:

- Feedback on students' performance can be used for the grading process.
- Information from the service beneficiaries, types of service, outcomes, and successes of the e-SL project.
- Evaluation of cooperation with students and university teachers.

Methods to gather this information may be faculty site visits, interviews via phone or email, and distribution of project evaluations form.

It can also be necessary for your organisation to make an internal evaluation with your team and plan future involvement in e-SL projects.
